Volunteer Days

TOGETHERGREEN VOLUNTEER DAYS are events designed to connect you with enjoyable opportunities to make a difference for the environment in your community. It gives you a chance to make positive changes; to learn more about the pressing issues affecting local wildlife and habitat; and to meet others with shared interests.

Each year, dozens of Audubon sites nationwide hold hundreds of volunteer events. Activities include habitat and trail restoration, river and lake clean-ups, invasive species removal, nest-box building, wildlife and plant surveys, and more. Volunteer Days have resulted in tens of thousands of volunteer hours and hundreds of projects across the country. Among the successes:

- The Wabash Valley Audubon Society in Terre Haute, IN built and installed the very first nest boxes at the Chinook Fish & Wildlife Area, a reclaimed strip mine.
- The Greater Ozarks Audubon Society in Springfield, MO turned out volunteers in droves, blazing a trail around Lake Springfield and cleaning up South Creek.

Dozens of major organizations such as AmeriCorps, National Park Service and US Fish & Wildlife, along with schools, businesses and community groups, have played a hands-on role in Volunteer Days. Toyota employees and their families have volunteered in New York, Los Angeles, and San Antonio and will continue their contribution in the years ahead.
